

LAW LIBRARY SPOTLIGHT

The definitive source on insurance law in Wisconsin – newly updated!

Anderson on Wisconsin Insurance Law

Considered the bible of insurance law for Wisconsin practitioners, Anderson on Wisconsin Insurance Law has been the definitive resource for the insurance industry, insurance lawyers, civil litigators, and the courts for decades and continues to be the most current, authoritative resource for Wisconsin practitioners.

From complexity to clarity

Originally written by the late Arnie Anderson, one of the state's most respected insurance litigators, our current authors continue to provide the information and expertise so needed to foster greater understanding of a comprehensive array of insurance coverage issues, including:

- Interpretation of insurance contracts
- General liability policies
- Automobile liability insurance
- Fire and property insurance
- Responsibilities of insurance companies, agents, and insureds
- Subrogation

Keep your coverage current

Make sure you have the latest edition of Anderson on Insurance, which includes changes such as:

- An in-depth examination of the concepts of prejudice and late notice, the interplay between the duty to defend and the duty to indemnify, the effect of ambiguity on policy interpretation, and when coverage is triggered
- A recent Eastern District of Wisconsin case explaining what constitutes “negligent operation” under Wisconsin law
- Recent Wisconsin Supreme Court cases addressing whether the underinsured motorist statute permits insurers to limit recovery by derivative claimants, as well as the resident relative exclusion, the intentional acts exclusion, and issue preclusion
- Continuing insurance coverage issues related to COVID-19 closures

Insurance permeates nearly all aspects of life (and law). If you practice insurance law or you're a civil litigator, chances are good an insurance law issue will land on your desk. Be ready to advise clients on their insurance law matters, whatever form they might take, with help from the latest edition of Anderson on Wisconsin Insurance Law.
