It's big. It's bold. It's the new Milwaukee Bucks Arena, Training Center, and Entertainment District. Gain insight into how the Milwaukee Bucks development projects came together, how the project team managed legal and technical issues on these ambitious projects, and interesting insights into the design, construction, and development processes. The top-notch panel includes the president of the Milwaukee Bucks, a representative from the general contractors for the Arena and Training Center, the lead architect for the Entertainment District, the owner's representative, and an experienced in-house construction counsel for a large Wisconsin trade organization. Expect to walk away with a greater understanding and appreciation for the work behind these big projects and lessons to be applied to projects of all sizes.
