

About the Authors

Henry J. Plum has been in private law practice in the greater Milwaukee area for more than 40 years. He continues to serve as legislative co-chair of the Children and the Law Section of the State Bar of Wisconsin and, in that capacity, also served on the Legislative Council Study Committee on Minor Guardianships, which led to the passage of 2019 Wis. Act 109. His practice includes serving as a special prosecutor, consultant, and teacher for county and state agencies on multiple child-related issues, including Wis. Stat. ch. 48, the Wisconsin Children’s Code. In addition, he authored or coauthored numerous books and publications regarding children’s issues, including Wisconsin Juvenile Court Practice & Procedure and the first and second editions of Minor Guardianships of the Person: Wisconsin Children’s Court Practice and Procedure. As a member of the board for the National Association of Counsel for Children and as legal advisor to the International Society for the Prevention of Child Abuse and Neglect, Attorney Plum also educates and consults on children’s issues, both nationally and internationally.

Deanna Weiss has been practicing law in the areas of minor guardianship, children in need of protection or services, and termination of parental rights for the past 25 years at both the trial court and appellate levels. She is currently a sole practitioner in Milwaukee County. From 1998 until 2023, she held the positions of staff attorney, managing attorney, and senior attorney with the Legal Aid Society of Milwaukee. Before 1998, she worked in the public sector in the areas of child support, poverty, and health-care issues. Ms. Weiss is a board member (2016–present) and co-chair of the Children and the Law Section of the State Bar of Wisconsin. In 2012, she was named a Leader in the Law by Wisconsin Law Journal: an attorney who demonstrated outstanding leadership, vision, and legal expertise in Wisconsin’s legal community.
