

About the Supplement Author

Benjamin Harville has been the director of the Immigrant Justice Clinic at the University of Wisconsin Law School since May 2016. Before accepting that position, Ben was the Senior Staff Attorney with the Florence Immigrant and Refugee Rights Project, where he worked since August 2012. The Florence Project provides free legal services to people detained by Immigration and Customs Enforcement in Pinal County, Arizona. Ben graduated magna cum laude from the University of Arizona's James E. Rogers College of Law in 2012. His article "Ensuring Protection or Opening the Floodgates? Refugee Law and its Application to Those Fleeing Drug Violence in Mexico" was published in the Fall 2012 edition of the Georgetown Immigration Law Journal.

