

About the Authors

Thomas Hruz has served on District III of the Wisconsin Court of Appeals since September 2014. Previously, he was a shareholder at a law firm where his practice focused on civil litigation, with an emphasis on appellate work. Judge Hruz received his B.A. from the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, summa cum laude, his M.P.A. from the University of Wisconsin-Madison, and his J.D. from Marquette University, magna cum laude. He served as a law clerk for Judge John Coffey of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit and for Justice David Prosser of the Wisconsin Supreme Court. Judge Hruz is active in many bar associations and other law-related organizations.

Nathan Petrashek was appointed the district staff attorney for District II of the Wisconsin Court of Appeals in 2021. In that role, he acts as an institutional attorney for the court of appeals and advises the judges regarding state appellate procedure and the disposition of appeals, writs, and petitions; provides professional research and writing services; and manages the district's expedited appeals and intern programs. Before his appointment, he clerked for several state appellate court judges. Nathan is a board member of the State Bar of Wisconsin's Appellate Practice Section and teaches appellate writing and advocacy at Marquette University Law School, where he earned his law degree in 2009 and was a member of the law review. He also holds degrees in political science and public administration from the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay.
