Why Lawyers Strike Out: Professionalism in Baseball & the Legal Profession

Friday, July 12, 2019

You're invited to Miller Park for a night of lively discussion, delicious appetizers, and captivating baseball!

First up to bat, former prosecutor and trained educator Philip Bogdanoff will lead an interactive discussion about whether the unwritten rules of professionalism in baseball can apply to the legal profession. In Why Lawyers Strike Out: Professionalism in Baseball & the Legal Profession, you'll learn how to devise a playbook for maintaining professionalism in the courtroom.

Immediately following the program, slide on over to the Uecker Room to enjoy a lineup of complimentary beverages and appetizers while socializing with your colleagues. If you're lucky, you may even catch a glimpse of your favorite Brewers players warming up during batting practice.

When it's time for the first pitch, head on down to your field-level seats on the third base line and cheer on the Milwaukee Brewers as they defeat the San Francisco Giants!

Space is limited. Cover your bases and register today!

ABOUT THE PRESENTER

Philip Bogdanoff is a continuing education presenter for attorneys, prosecutors, police officers, and legal administrators. Prior to working as an educator, Philip was a prosecutor for the Summit County, Ohio Prosecutor's Office for 30 years, during which time he argued 20 cases before the Ohio Supreme Court.

Philip first developed an interest in ethics and professionalism after participating on a task force with the Ohio Ethics commission and United States Attorney's Offices to investigate corruption in Summit County government. Over the course of his career, Philip has worn multiple hats, acting as a legal advisor, instructor, and independent consultant for numerous law enforcement agencies.

In 2002, Philip was honored as the Summit County Prosecutor employee of the year; he officially retired from public service in 2008.
